

TRIED A "HOLD-UP."

Robert Thomas Says He Was Starving and Desperate.

Pointed a Pistol at Ticket-Agent Kehoe's Head.

Captured After a Sharp Struggle in the "L" Station.

Detective Hook and Policeman McEvoy, of the Fifth street station, noticed a youthful looking man, tall and cadaverous, acting in a rather suspicious manner shortly before 12 o'clock last night, at the corner of Third avenue and Ninth street.

The fellow glanced hurriedly around several times and suddenly placing his hand on his hip pocket, began to ascend the stairs of the uptown elevated station.

Going to the window where Ticket-Agent John M. Kehoe sat with several dollars in his pocket, he saw the stranger draw a six-shooter six-caliber revolver.

Leveling it at Kehoe's head he demanded the money, saying he would blow Kehoe's brains out if he refused or gave an alarm.

Kehoe dodged under the window and cried for help.

Gateman Charles Rosener, of 288 East Tenth street, ran from the station platform. The two seized the man. A fierce struggle of short duration then ensued, during which the man was felled and disarmed.

Detective Hook and Policeman McEvoy, hearing the scuffle, hurried to the station and took the fellow into custody.

At the station-house he said his name was Robert Thomas. He said he was eighteen years old.

Thomas says he has been in New York but two weeks, having come from St. Louis, where he worked as an electrolytist.

He said he had become desperate through poverty and hunger.

Since arriving in New York he has been stopping with a family named Hirsch at Fifty-fifth street and Third avenue. He says he has been searching for work daily but without success.

Thomas says that another man gave him the revolver to "hold up" the ticket agent. He refused to give the man's name.

When arraigned in the Essex Market Police Court today, Thomas admitted the charge against him, but begged the Court to be lenient, as he was starving and half-crazed by destitution.

He was held in $1,000 bail for trial at General Sessions.

SHOT TWICE TO KILL.

An Escaping Burglar Fires Point-Blank at a Policeman.

An escaping burglar tried to murder Policeman George Whitlock in Hoboken at an early hour this morning. He fired two shots pointblank at Whitlock, but missed each time.

"About 2 o'clock this morning," said Whitlock, at Hoboken Police Headquarters later, "as I was passing up Fourteenth street from the ferry, I saw two men working at a window on the Hudson street side of Rankin's saloon."

On asking them to come out, they refused, and they were on their way home, and bearing the noise of dogs, I was looking to see what was going on."

I took them around the corner and handed one of them over to Policeman Wallace. They came along down Washington street, and when we came to Second street, the burglar fired at me with a revolver, and I should have killed the man if I should have had the man of the gun."

Policeman Wallace landed his prisoner in the station-house, and the burglar was taken to the station-house, where he was held in custody.

The burglar was held in custody, and the case was referred to the District Attorney.

DRUGGED IN HIS OWN SALOON.

Boozbrink Given "Knocker-Out," Beaten and Robbed.

A bold robbery, in which the "knocker-out" drug and a bludgeon figured, was reported this morning in Brooklyn.

The victim was George Boozbrink, who keeps a saloon at Van Sten avenue and Fulton street. About 1 o'clock this morning three young men came to Boozbrink's place. After drinking together they invited him to join them. He did so.

When several rounds had been disposed of Boozbrink became oblivious to the surroundings. He remembers nothing more.

At 2 o'clock his barkeeper went to open the place and found his employer lying on the floor. He called for help, and the three young men fled.

Boozbrink's diamond pin was gone, together with his gold watch and chain and about $50 which had been stolen from the drawer of the cash register. He was in a comatose condition today.

He appeared to have been deeply drugged.

He told very fragmentary stories. He was in a comatose condition today.
